RAPED AND A MOTHER AT FOURTEEN

When she was nine years old, Suzana was already an orphan, and she was sent to live with her step-brother in Bafang, a town located in the West of Cameroon. One day, she suddenly fell ill with severe headaches and was later diagnosed to be epileptic. So, she stopped schooling in class five, and her step-brother decided to take her to Otou, (a border town between Cameroon and Nigeria) for medical treatment. A few weeks after, her step-brother told her that he had run short of money and will have to go back to Bafang to get some more money, and assured her that he will be back in a few weeks. Meanwhile, she would stay with a friend of his, who is a custom officer. This turns out to be several years of waiting and it became obvious that she was abandoned.

The years that followed were a nightmare for Suzana; as she was repeatedly subjected to terrifying and pitiless sexual assaults by her custodian. "Whenever he sent his two wives to visit their relatives in Mamfe or Calabar, Suzana revealed, he used to come into my bedroom in the night. He used to hold my two arms firmly and press me on the bed with all his strength, and close my mouth so that I would not shout. He often beat me so badly that I became frightened to tell anybody. Sometimes, if I tried to scream, he pointed a knife at me threateningly, and said he would kill me if I dared open my mouth."

At thirteen, Suzana was pregnant. She became very sick more frequently and was having constant epileptic fits. Everybody thought she would die. 'No preparations were made for my baby', Suzana said 'when I was taken to the hospital, the second wife brought me a baby bath tub and an old nappy which had both been used by her child. There was no cloth for the baby and nothing for me. Pa never came to the hospital to see me; neither did any of his wives prepared food for me while in the hospital. An elderly woman whom I had known before visited me and started bringing me food and old clothes for the baby. 'When she was asked what she would do to earn a living for her baby and herself, Suzana said she would like to sell food by the roadside, but she had no capital to start with, even though she could not stay under the sun for too long because of her ill health. 'I'm still hoping to find something I can do, because my sister's husband has started complaining that he can no longer keep me and my child in his house.'
